MM. C. ANDERSON, Recorder. Dudley's Confirm: .on.

[Washington special Cincinnati Gazette.] Senator Bayard made a very fierce speech, denouncing Dudley as a bad man, and in every way unworthy of the confidence of the country. Senator Vest, of Missouri, followed in the same strain, showing that he was animated by a personal dislike of the man.

To these phillipics Senator Harrison reponded in a speech of about twenty-five minutes in length. It was the senator's maiden effort in the senate, and when he arose every eye was instantly turned upon him, and he was accorded the closest attention by all in the room. At the close of his remarks the sen-ators of both sides of the chamber gathered about him and congratulated him on the able and conciliatory manner in which he defended his friend, "After such an ansocratic senator, "I can not conscientiously vote to reject the nomination." Those who heard Senator Harrison say he seemed perfectly at home on the of the senate, and spoke in the same direct, forcible manner which characterized his arguments to a court. A few moments after the senator had taken his seat Senator Voorhees speke in behalf of Col. Dudley with considerable feeling, showing that he took no stock in the statements of his Democratic colleagues. When the vote was taken, Senator Davis, of Illinois, voted for the confirmation in a tone of more positiveness than usual with him. It was noted also that all the Confederate soldiers voted for him.

Col. Dudley has been the recipient of hundreds of congratulations from men of all parties. Last night his house was be-sieged with friends, at one time the street front of his residence on Vermont avenue being almost entirely blockaded

IRISH AFFAIRS.

No Disturbance to Business from the League's Suppression.

LONDON, October 24.—A Dublin corres-dent says that since the proclamation against the league, accounts from various parts of the country have been satisfactory. and people are much relieved.

Dr. Henry, member of the executive com mittee of the land league and the medical attendant of several imprisoned"suspects," was arrested to-day and conveyed to Kil Patrick J. Smythe, a home rule member of parliament for Tipperary, agrees with Archbishop Croke in his depreceation of the 'no rent policy." It is said it is probable that Parnell will e removed from Kilmainham to Belfast r Tifford jail, and Nettle, Monaghan, Dillon, O'Kelly, Brennan and, if his evesight permits, Boyton be removed to other pris ons, but it is impossible to remove Sexton and O'Brien, because of their health. A Dispassionate View of the Situation. Geo. W. Smalley's dispatch New York Tribune. The government proclamation suppressing the league and guaranteeing the free exercise of lawful rights, contains language that is particularly gratifying to all parties in England. The government has already hesitated to act against the league, because ministers had frequently declared it to be legal. Now that it compromises itself by endeavoring by merciless intimidation to confiscate the landed property, the government, with a clear conscience has determined to stamp it out.

Archbishop Croke's letter expresses the view of all respectable Irishmen, but it is singular he does not speak from a religious point of view. His condemnation derives its strongest support from the purely national approval which he has so long given to the league. The effect of the govern-ment's rigor is encouraging even in Ire-land. In Dublin and the large towns the respectable people are not afraid welcome the restoration of order welcome the restoration of order. Many "Boycotted" products have reappeared in the markets. The riots in Dul in and Limerick were not political, but purely organized by young ruffians. The attempt in Dublin to start a sympathetic movement with Parnell has ignominiously collapsed. The indiscretion of Dwyer. Gray and Mr. Dawson, in endeavoring to connect the riots with political feeling and persuade Mr. Forster to withdraw the police, was signally demonstrated by the win-dow smasning which followed their with-drawal. Quietude is now maintained by their presence. The trading classes are recovering courage and arranging a meeting to support the government. The land court has opened most satisfactorily. The number of cases shows that the tenantry appreciate the land act. Of course the Ulster men are eager to apply to the court, and are forming combinations to conduct their cases. Evidence of the failure the land league intimidation afforded by the large number of plicants from Limerick, and the appeal of a hundred tenants from the estate of Parnell's brother in Wicklew. The land league solicitor has temporarily suspended is cases, and all were cunningly selected from such property as was let below Griffith's valuation, with a view to entrapping the court into an increase of the rent, and so justify an outcry against it. The government policy so far has been highly There is no disposition shown by any party in England to stint the full powers of repression. Any reorganization under another name, such as tenants' union, is provided against by proclamation. The Irish-American contributors to an already enormous exchequer doubtless remember how previous secret society funds have disappeared. It is a dangerous temptation to place unlimited means for secret purposes n the hands of penniless agitators. THE OHIO RAILROAD. The Vanderbilts Get Out a Counter [Columbus special Cincinnati Commercial.] The Vanderbilt party are evidently cornered so far as the state courts are con-cerned. Judge Green states that he will not hear any motions or do anything till the parties enjoined come into court and show cause for their disrespect of the temporary injunction. This cuts them off, as they are not likely to take the chance in courthere, and in case of being unable to show satisfactory of being arrested. There will, therefore, be no further hearing of the case, especially on a motion to dissolve the injunction. It is reported to-night that the Vanderbilt attorney will go the United States court; that they will try to get Judge Swing to come here and hearthem.

GUARDING THE OFFICES. CLEVELAND, October 24, 3 a. m.-The general offices of the Ohio railroad company are to-night closely guarded by em-ployes, and it is generally understood that an effort on the part of the receiver to take possession of the road would be forcibly resisted.

AN INJUNCTION ON THE RECEIVER. CLEVILAND, O., October 24.—W. H. Clement, recently appointed receiver the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and ndianapolis railway, arrived early this morning from Columbus, accompanied by Mr. Woodward, one of his bondsmen, and H. J. Booth and E. A. Ferguson, attorneys for H. J. Jewett. Shortly before reaching the union depot, Sheriff Buck'ev boarded the train and served upon Mr. Clement the summons of court in the proceedings of the injunction granted by Judge Caldwell in behalf of A. Wallaston and George Herring, the English trustees of 17,000 shares of Ohio railway stock restraining the receiver from in any manner interfering with the officers, agents, or property of the Ohio Railway company, or rom taking any action whatever under the order appointing a receiver, so far as the Ohio railway is concerned. Mr. Booth brought with him the papers issued by the Columbus court, which the sheriff served this morning on the parties named therein.

The Trunk Line War.

NEW YORK, October 24.—The New York Central is said to be making contracts to run a year at present rates. Tillinghast, of the New York Central, is reported as saying that the war could be ended by Mr. Garratt, and that Mr. Vanderbilt was determined to abolish differential rates; if the Baltimore and Ohio advanced the rates the Vanderbilts would follow suit, but would bring freights to New York for whatever price Garrett charged for carrying it to Baltimore. In this connection some significance may attach to the story that the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio people have been in conference in this city the past week and agreed to ad vance local rates.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY. The President Nominates Ex-Governor Morgan.

WASHINGTON, October 24.—President Arthur sent in the nomination of Edwin D. Morgan, of New York, to be secretary of the treasury. This was the only nomination sent in to-day. Edwin Dennison Morgan, born in February lEdwin Dennison Morgan, born in February of 1811, is thus over seventy years of age. He began his mercantile career in a fancy store at Hartford, Conn., in 1828. He removed to New York city in 1836 and became a highly successful merchant. He was a state senator 1849-53; chairman of the republican state committee; governor of the state 1859-63, distinguishing his administration by a decrease of the state debt, increase of the canal tolls and a free use of his veto power. His zeal and efficiency did much toward filling out New York's 220,000 volvanteers weto power. His zeal and efficiency did much toward filling out New York's 220,000 volunteers for the war. A GOOD ENOUGH MORGAN. [Gath's Cincinnati Enquirer Dispatch.] Morgan, like most wealthy men of New York, has no great place in the public heart, but is respected as an upright mag-isurate, with sound ideas, and particularly istrate, with sound ideas, and particularly liable to have a good influence over the president. He had the good sense to select young Arthur to be his quartermaster; and it is creditable to both of them that they

Two men, both ex-governors of New York, and both ex-senators, are at the head of the republicans of this city in services. Fish was the backbone of Grant's administration. His sense of fidelity to Grant has sometimes been carried to excess. Morgan has, perhaps, a duller sense of honor than Fish, but is probably more conservative and cautious, and less apt to show temper. Both Morgan and Fish respond in different degrees to public opinion. There is a certain commercial obtuse-ness about Morgan coincident with his business (which is that of a grocer and sugar importer) that has kept him from professional appreciation in the metropolis. On the other hand, Mr. Fish has not been among the people, and is credited with some aristocratic points. I think there is large faith, however, in both men. They are equally stalwart, though Morgan has the New England faculty of demanding more and more reform with time. He is not tied to any past reputation. oody who has been in his service adheres to him through years, Arthur among the

I talked this morning with a group of merchants, quite representative in their character, and they said: "Morgan will do. But we should have been just as well satisfied with some bright western man who has neither interests nor reciprocities in this city." The president's nomination of Morgen, I may add, has had more effect than any thing else to re-live him from an ever present an-ticipation of being the dependent of Mr. Conkling. Although retired from public life for the present, the antagonism to Conkling has not ceased; and I was sur-

Secretary of the Senate. WASHINGTON, October 24.-Senator Edmunds's move this morning, in forestalling the democratic caucus, caused some merri-ment. The caucus instructed Mr. Pendleton to report a resolution to appoint Chief Clerk Shober acting secretary, but Ed-munds got the floor first, and offered a resolution worded precisely like that Pendleton was awaiting a chance to submit. The democrats, of course, had to vote for the resolution. The affair was considered a good joke on them.

The election of Shober as acting secretury, is satisfactory to both sides of the senate, and many believe it is the final disposition of the secretural parties of the secretural parties. position of the secretaryship until some in the political status of the senate gives one party or the other a decided majority. Shober is very competent, and has made himself popular as chief clerk. He was formerly a member of congress from North Carolina. If the republicans, next winter, can see their way clear to getting rid of Gorham and Riddle-berger, they will probably undertake to elect a secretary, but there does not now seem to be much prospect of getting rid of the difficulty. At present Mahone firmly insists upon sticking to those nominations, while Frye, Hale Harrison and Hawley and several others are said to be positive in declaring they will not vote for Gorham and Riddleberger. The result of the Virginia election ext month may work some changes in Mahone's sentiments. If he carries Riddleberger will be his candidate for United States senator, and he might then consent to accept a candidate for secretary instead of Gorham. If Mahone is beaten in Virginia it will hardly be possible for bim to make another canvass with any show of success and then he might consent to abandon Gorham and Riddleberger. MONDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1881.

"JUDGE" Tyner as they are again calling him at Washington, it is said has to "go" positively and without fail, as the circus posters have it. In view of this he begged the president for the appointment as railroad commissioner and was refused. The "cheek" of him ! Tyner has money enough to live without a government salary we presume; if he hasn't, let him work for a living once.

A DETERMINED effort is making to push the Garfield memorial hospital project, and to this end the ministers of all denom inations in the land are asked to set aside Saturday and Sunday, November 5 and 6, for discourses and collections to aid this scheme. It is a worthy scheme. No name could be more fittingly identified with a place to treat suffering humanity, no less from the great-heartedness that marked his life than from the suffering that ended it.

THE Irish sympathy meeting to be held this week will give Governor Porter and ex-Governor Hendricks, who are to speak, a task of considerable delicacy to distinguish between the sufferings of the tenantry, caused by oppressive landlordism, and that caused by resistance to a measure of amelioration that is approved by all the leading clergy, and that the league declared war against without waiting to try what good there was in it. Sympathy with the land league, which it is the purpose of this meeting to express, means sympathy with resistance to the land bill without giving it a chance; with the "filibustering" that tried to beat it without seeing what good could be put into it.

It is reported from Washington this morning that the deficiency in the appropriation for pensions this year will be $20,-000,000, although the appropriation is $50, 000,000, making the pension list $70,000,000. To this there will be added $10,000,000 yearly till the arrearages, allowed by the late "arrearage bill," are all settled. Then a decline will come. Before that the annual expense for pensions will probably reach $120,000,000. It is perfectly safe to say that one-fourth of that amount goes to pay fraudulent claims manufactured by agents and rings familiar with the business agents and rings familiar with the business of the office. And full half of the redeductions.

mainder goes to the "arrearages," for which there was never a shadow of right. The grant was a speculation of sharp and scoundrelly agents, who knew how hard it would be for congress to say "no" to anything demanded in the name of disabled soldiers. They manufactured most of the interest manifested for it, and sedulor sly lobbied in its favor, and finally got it at a cost of full $50,000,000 a year to the country, of which precious little goes to the deserving soldiers, and none goes to those who really needed such an addition. It is a monstrous gratuity, out of which more scoundrels than disabled soldiers are getting a profit.

IF we may believe further cabinet speculations from Washington, Mr. Conkling was originally tendered the treasury portfolio, and declined it. President Arthur urged, and to oblige him Conkling consented, his health only standing in the way. To obviate this, Assistant Treasurer Gilfillan is to act in Windom's absence until Conkling is strong enough to take hold. Thus saith rumor. Why President Arthur should appoint Conkling at all is past comprehension. It will wreck him and his administration and leave his party to struggle with the effects. Why he should appoint him secretary of the treasury is still more incomprehensible. It is true there will not be much financiering needed in the next three years, but if Mr. Conkling has even what Mrs. Malaprop would call "a supercilious knowledge of accounts," it is one of the best kept secrets of a public career in American history. He can defy any one to show by any utterance of his that he has any knowledge whatever of finance. But as his appointment to the treasury, would be his appointment to any cabinet office, and it seems to us so palpably bad as to argue the uselessness of protesting against it. President Arthur knows what happened on the second day of July, the events that preceded that and those which have occurred since. If in the face of it all he chooses to give Mr. Conkling a place he is beyond the reach of remonstrance.

EX-POSTMASTER GENERAL KEY SAYS TYner returned from the Pacific coast in the autumn of 1879 and submitted a written report of the Star route doings (the same we told of last week), and that he, Key, told him there would be a row if Brady's department was interfered with, and advised him to have a conference with Brady; that he believed Brady to be honest and capable. Private examination showed that Brady's action had been sustained in every case by reports to the departments, and Key expresses his profound confidence in the absolute honesty of both Brady and Tyner. Key also cites congress's approval of Brady's recommendation. In short, Key comes over the old technical defense which Brady has already worn threadbare. The country knows that Key was a mere figurehead; that Tyner was virtually postmaster general, and Key, with, his southern antecedents, did not dare counteract two such eminently "loil" blowers and strikers as Tyner and Brady. But besides Tyner's virtual control of the department under Key, he was second assistant P. M. G .- the division afterward presided over by Brady and which has direct control of the Star Routes-from February 26, 1875 to July 12, 1876, and he was postmaster general from July 12, 1876 to March 12, 1887 -the last days of Grant's administration. Upon those facts the New York Times asks these pertinent questions:

How did it happen that some of the most costly "increases" and "expeditions" ever made by the department were ordered in that period when he was the department's responsible head, and a head who could not olead inexperience as an excuse for mistakes? How did it happen in that time, when Judge Key was only the nominal head, and Mr. Tyner and his friend Brady were conducting the business of the department, that in the last half of the con-tract term, 1874-8, there were ring transactions in the contract bureau as enormous and as indefensible as any that have since occurred? How did it happen that some of these costly changes were made by orders signed by Mr. Tyner himself? Further specifies the Times: "In the last days of Grant's administration when

Tyner was postmaster general and Brady

second assistant, they two signed orders

expediting certain star routes, among them particularly eight which terminated at Cheyenne, running the compensation up from $58,681 to $133,957. The contractors for those routes were all one firm, though under different names." The Times further shows that Tyner and Brady thus expended nearly one-twelfth of the whole sum allowed for expenditure west of the 100th meridian, upon this one firm, and they did not increase the length of those routes by a single mile. Moreover after Key came in the orders signed by Brady under Tyner's supervision, the Times says, in less than six weeks increased star route compensation $324,703, For this Key was responsible, but it was in the days of his early administration when he could know little or nothing of his department if indeed he ever knew anything about it. But further, after this report of Tyner's which we chronicled last week as exposing the star route frauds he, Tyner, went on the floor of the house exerting his influence to shield Brady and to secure the passage of two million dollars to continue the frauds. This performance was in February of 1880 and Tyner had made his report in Ausust of 1879. But further; the Indianapolis correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial says that in November of 1879, three months after Tyner's report in which he condemned Star route frauds, Mr. Tyner declared that the charges then coming out against Brady in the newspapers were untrue; that he was being blackmailed by disappointed contractors; and that Mr. Tyner afterwards wrote a letter to Colonel W. R. Holloway, then postmaster at Indianapolis, saying that the Journal of this city was doing

Brady injustice, and that if there were any exposures to be made they had better be

Indiana has passed a constitutional amend-ment giving women full suffrage, but the sub-ject has got to be acted upon by the state legis-lature to be in full force.—[Chicago News,

The Chicago paper is wide of the mark. Indiana has passed no such constitutional amendment. The last legislature passed such, but it has to be passed by a succeeding legislature, a year hence, and then run the gauntlet of the polls. It takes no prophet to tell what the result will be.

The Scotch and English tenantry are now proposing to move upon parliament for as favorable terms with their landlords as are granted the Irish under the land act: but they are not likely, if parliament complies with their request, to turn around and do what they can to make the realization of their demand impossible by refusing to pay any rent at all.—[Cincinnati Commercial.

It is not unlikely President Arthur will have new views as to the sacredness and strength of the executive prerogative. A few squabbles over patronage and a deadlock or two in the senate may convert him to the principles of civil service reform, as the raid of the office-seakers converted Secretary Windom .- Boston Herald.

The thing that the league wishes to abolish is not a particular landlord, but rent; it will have to give individuals the security of tenure that ownership, or at least a long lease, affords, and yet prevent the person who gets possession of a piece of land from disposing of his rights to some other person for a pecuniary compensation, or, in other words, leasing his holding and collecting rent from his tenant, which would be simply a revival of landlordism. -[Chicago Times.

There are irregularities in the tariff which will call for political action when manufacturers begin to lose money. There will be demands for more protection from one quarter, and those for its abolition altogether from another. When people get in the mood for quarreling, as they always do when they become dissatisfied with their worldly success, there are issues enough.—[St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Views on Ireland. Mr. Walter, the proprietor of the Lon-don Times, in an interview at Albany, speaking of the troubles in Ireland, he "Force will be resorted to, if other means fail. The Irish are a fractious, turbulent people; they are so by temperament individually and collectively. Take, for instance, your own country. Look at the Maryland and Pennsylvania riots, some years ago; who were the prime factors in these disturbances? The Irish; and so you will find it the world over. The Irish are, and always have been, a difficult people to deal with. But suppose," said the proprietor, "the English government should concede some of the privileges they demand would it not result beneficially?" "No sir," answered Walter, emphatically, "one concession would mean a dozen more, and so on, ad infinitum; give in on one point, and the whole Irish people, from Port Rush to Killarney, would raise a clamor for those that remained. Reason, persuasion, self-government, have all been tried with them. But what did they all amount to? Nothing, absolutely nothing. It only made con-fusion worse confounded."

THE DEATH OF WASHINGTON. Notes of the Event as Chronicled in the American Mercury of Hartford, Connecticut, at the Time. The News has been shown a file of the American Mercury, from April 26, 1798, to December 31, 1801, published at Hartford, Connecticut, by Elijah Babcock, and now owned by Edward King, Esq. An interesting feature of its chronicles is its report of the death of Washington and the incidents relating thereto. Its issue of December 26, 1799, contains the announcement of the death, which took place Saturday, the 14th inst. Its first note of the event reads as follows: "Alexandria, Dec. 19. "It is our painful duty first to announce to cur country and the world the death of General George Washington. This sorrowful event occurred last Saturday even ing, about 11 o'clock. On the preceding night he was attacked with a violent inflammatory affection of throat, which, in less throat, which, in less than twenty-four hours put a period to his life." which, The fact of the death was reported to President John Adams by Tobias Lear, in the following communication: "MOUNT VERNON, December 15, 1799 .- Sir: It s with inexpressible grief that I have to an-nounce to you the death of the great and good ieneral Washington. He died last evening, be-ween 10 and 11 o'clock, after a short illness of about twenty-four hours. His disease was an inabout twenty-four hours. His disease was an in-ilammatory sore throat, which proceeded from a cold, of which he made but little complaint on Friday. On Saturday morning, about 3 o'clock, he became ill. Dr. Dick attended him in the morning and Dr. Craik, of Alexandria, and Dr. Brown, of Port Tebacco, were soon after called in. Every medical assistance was offered, but without the desired effect. His last scene corre-sponded with the whole tenor of his life. Not a grown nor a complaint escaped him in extreme distress. With perfect resignation and full pos-session of his reason, he closed his well spent life."

This communication was submitted to the house of representatives by the president, along with a formal message, as

The letter herewith transmitted will inform The letter nerewith transmitted will inform you that it has pleased Divine Providence to remove from this life George Washington, by the purity of his character and a long series of services to his country, rendered illustrious throughout the world. At the time the message was submitted General Marshall, "with deep sorrow in his countenance and in a low, pathetic tone of voice," pronounced a brief and appropriate eulogy, at the close of which he offered resolutions for the adjournment of the house, the draping of the speaker's chair in mourning and appointment of a committee "to consider on the most suitable manner of paying honor to the memory of the man, first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his country." By the order of James McHenry, secretary of war, the officers of the navy were required to wear crape upon their left arms by way of mourning, for six months. The commander-in-chief of the militia of New Jersey requested that every military gentle-man in New Jersey should wear a black crape upon his left arm, and when in regimentals, a black sword knot of narrow black ribbon, wrapped around the guard of the sword, for one entire year. The communications which passed at the time between congress and the president, and between the governors and assemblies of the respective states, are given in the Mercury, which go to show that the most prefound sorrow prevailed throughout the nation. Extracts from the speeches, messages, letters and orders of Washington are given in succeeding issues of the Mercury, with the evident desire on the part of the editor to keep not only his readers but posterity mindful of the injunctions, ideas, visdom and character of the illustrious dead. Mourning rules were displayed in the paper for several issues. The Mercury also published the following "extract of a letter from a respectable gentleman in Georgetown, Maryland," relating to Wash-

The particular testimonials of General Washington's remembrance to individuals consist of four legacies only. One of these is a pair of curiously mounted pistols to M. de La Fayette, who took them when commanding a small detachment during the revolutionary war, and presented them to the general; his books and papers to Judge Washington—a most valuable gift; and to Dr. Craik, a whimsical shaped mechanical writing desk. I must not here omit a circumstance which places in a most eminent point of view the beautiful propriety of his characteristical prudence by which he often disentangled himself from situations truly embarrassing. Some years since the present Earl of Buchan sent to the general a curious oaken box, made out of the tree which concealed Sir James Wallace, with this request subjoined: "That he would at his death leave it to the man he thought most worthy." The general, with great wisdom, has desired the box to be returned to his lordship, with this answer: "That it is not for General Washington to point out the worthiest citizen of the United States." One striking singularity of his will is an elaborate collection of arguments annexed to every item, wherein he demonstrates the propriety of the management and disposal of his effects and wealth, which is estimated at a million of do-

The Mercury also publishes a letter from gentleman of the first respectability in Baltimore," also relative to the will and the manumitting of Washington's slaves: Washington made his will in July, 1899; he de-vised all his estate real and personal to his wife, at her death he manumits all her slaves and at her death he manumits all her slaves and their increase, creating a fund for the maintainance of the young, aged and injured, which assigns the reason for the intermixture of the dower and his own slaves. He devises the shares in the Potomac and James river companies to two colleges. He devises his manuscripts, books and papers, Mount Vernon and 1,000 acres of land and one-third of a 23d part in the residuum to Busrod Washington. He then makes a schedule of the residuum, which at a low valuation is $530,000, which he divides into twenty-three shares and divides these shares among the tion is $580,000, which he divides into twenty-three shares and divides these shares among the Custis family. * * * * The will is a masterly and lengthy composition and is all in the General's hand writing; who leaves one branch of all his relatives, his wife and G. W. Custis, his executor and executrix. Mrs. Washington has announced that after this year all the negroes are to be emancipated. According to the General' wishes the spirit of freedom has progressed, in progressing and will progress.

The Mercury's account of the interment consists of only a few lines noting the fact that it was attended by Washington's masonic brethren, the Alexandrian volunteers and a vast concourse of citizens.

diseases that has been overlooked by the medical faculty, because few people ever die directly from it, but may suffer the agonies of death ten fold. Sick Headache is not dependent on a dysmach, as is generally supposed to be the case, but upon an irritable state of the ner--vous system. The headache begins hours before the stomach becomes sick, and the cause of the stomach getting sick at all is from nervous sympathy transmitted from the brain to the stomach. The real and first cause of these headaches lies still further beck, and is to be found in a poor and impoverished condition of the nerve fluid, and while in this condition there are many local or exciting causes for these headaches, such as fatigue, overwork, bright light, hot sun, going without the usual meal, stimulauts, and various other things may bring on an attack, but all because the nervous system is run down. The last span of the new St. Louis bridge was finished yesterday. At 9 o'clock in the morning the whole track and floor were out, and "stringers" swinging ready to drop into place. There was 130 feet of gap that stopped all running. By 12 the "stringers" were down and the track replaced. The bridge is about done, except clearing away the spans of trestle-work. It is of much the same pattern as the Belt bridges, each span being separated entirely bridges, each span being separated entirely from the others, and the "cords" and main stays, or "chains" square and made of rivited wrought iron.

Church Services Yesterday. Many of the city pulpits were filled yes-terday by the delegates who attended last week's Christian missionary convention. The First and Second Presbyterian, the Meridian street M. E. church and other denominational churches, besides all of the Christian congregations were supplied with visiting brethren. At 3:30 in the afternoon a union communion service was held in Central chapel, all the Christian pastors and their congregations participation. and their congregations participating. Rev. A. I. Hobbs presided over the services. Remarks appropriate to the occasion and setting forth the full significance of the memorial of the Lord's Supper, were made by the visiting and resident pastors. The ceremony was beautiful and impressive, although an every Lord's day oocur-rencein the Christian church. The remaining visitors to the convention will leave for their homes to-day, thus closing a memorable week in the history of the church in this city. Sizes of Nails. The name and size of nails, as ten-penny, eight-penny, etc., is determined by the number to the pound and size. A three-penny is one inch long, and there are 557 to the pound: a six-penny nail is two inches long, with 177 to the pound; a ten-penny is two and three-fourth inches long, with sixty-eight to the pound.

The organ rolled its notes from the growling diapason to the gentle flute; and the congrega-tion accompanied by deep sepulchral coughs to coughs scarcely audible, because they had not yet heard of the wonderful efficacy of Dr. Bull's

TO-NIGHT. At Dickson's Grand Opera house Fred-rick Warde, an actor of decided talent, known throughout the country in the thter walks of the drama, will appear tonight in Virginius, to-morrow night in Richard III., Wednesday matinee in Ro-meo and Juliet and Wednesday evening in Demon and Pythias, the latter performance for the benefit of Indianapolis division No. 2 uniform rank K. of P. Mr. Warde will be well supported.

At English's Mr. Charles Fostelle will appear in his control of the co pear in his new humorous play of "Mrs. Partington," which is said to be the most mirth-provoking character. It will be re-peated two nights and a matinee.

At the Park Hermann, the great magician with a company of first-class specialists will appear to-night and all the week. Hermann's powers as a magician are undis-puted. He is unsurpassed. The troupe he brings with him is first-class in all repects. The prices during his engagement will be, balcony, 75 cents; parquette and par-quette circle reserved, 50 cents; dress circle 35 cents and gallery 25 cents. MAGGIE MITCHELL IN "LITTLE SAVAGE."

Maggie Mitchell appears to advantage in her new play, the "Little Savage," produced Saturday afternoon and evening at English's Opera house to large audiences.
The piece is evidently intended to provide opportunities for the actress. The story opportunities for the actress. The story is told incidentally by the actors rather than acted out by them. In other words they inform the audience what happoned prior to their appearance upon the scene, while the play itself deals with some the humorous sequences. The act is somewhat wordy, but bright enough, nevertheless; the second is devoted to situations at once novel and ludicrous, while the third and last, though not devoid of interesting incident, needs rounding off and readjustment to produce the effects that are possible and which the author has had in mind. As the play stands, it needs only some attention to this last act to become a popular addition to Miss Mitchell's repertory. It may be suggested to the author that if he will take his seat in the audience at the proper focal distance from the stage he will see the necessity of a few alterations in the act in question. The News is of opinion on first impression, that the assembly of singers subsequent to Con a sadmirably done tipsy scene should be eliminated. The reason for this is that at this stage of the play the audience is rather intent upon the denoucment than expecting new incidents and the song comes in ackwardly. Even were another act to come the objection would not be so good, but as the act is the last it is overweighted. This is about all the fault The News has to find. The com-mendable qualities of the play are many. The traditional heavy villain does not appear, the much abused characters of the ld-time notories are redeemed, the situations are novel and striking, the motives are pure, the satire upon foibles and in-consistencies of civilized society is keen, though veiled in comedy, the element of the picturesque is effectively employed, and while the play is essentially a play of one part, each actor engaged is permitted to do himself, or herself, justice. The part of Cora, taken by Miss Mitchell, is admirably adapted to display her peculiar excellencies. Way-ward, tempestuous when thwarted, quick to defy, and quicker to forgive, passion-ately loyal to her loves, one moment all smiles and another all tears, the little queen of the tropic isle, who has caught her temperament and nature from a southern sun, could find no one so well qualified to personate her as Maggie Mitchell. The conception of the author is a most happy one, and its interpretation abounds in so much vigor, truth and beauty that it doubtless finds new grace in the embodiment. The play additional country is a solution of the so mits of certain scenic effects and the use o drilled supernumeraries to a large extent although these elements are not entire ly essential to a satisfactory performance, as the glow diffused by the simple preslies Mitchell oblivious of either scenic splendor or poverty. Taking the play as it was produced here its success seems to be assured. Such defects as exist are easily to be remedied, and the author, whom it is understood has

THIS is a cheap, convenient, ornamental and practical device, easily adjusted, (a small screw driver the only tool required) to any sash and window frame as shown in the above cut. It is self-acting and will lighten the loosest rattling sash against wind or rain from blowing in and prevent the sash from rattling. This device is so constructed that it will instantly tighten the sash when closing, and loosen when opening it, along the natural and free movement of the sash and down; thus preventing the annoying friem and binding of the "weather strip" and other nilar expensive appliances. It operates with which of sash locks, weights or balances without either or both with equal return to energetic men.

Mrs. ex-Gov. Wallace, state president, is unable to attend, but will send a representative. Miss Willard, who was in attendance at the last national convention (which met in this city) will be president of the convention. A large attendance from all parts of the country is expected and probably twenty-five from Indiana will be present.

A Fine Point.
Judge Heller's recent Sunday law decision has been generally discussed among lawyers. The point is made by some that the judge is mistaken in bringing the drugstores into line with the hotels, for the reason that the law makes the keeping of hotels open on Sunday compulsory, while it is simply lawful to keep a drugstore open on that day. In the case of hotels, all incidental business which goes to maintain the hotel is lawful on Sunday because the proprietor is compelled to keep his house open Sunday while a druggist may close his store Sundays should he so desire, and, therefore, the sale of cigars is not a matter of necessity in the latter case as it is in the former.

James Ronner, a laborer at Streight's mill, had his right hand cut off this morning by a buzz saw. Ronner had just begun his day's work, when, in some unaccount-able way, his hand came in contact with the saw and was instantly torn to pieces. He is a married man, and lives at 359 South Missouri street. The wound was dressed at the surgical institute.

The Street Car company is building a new kind of street car, the principal fea-tures of which are a bay-window smoking room, and entrance from the front end only. The bay-window is at the rear end and the smoking apartment is partitioned off from the main room of the car by glass door and windows. The seats are placed crosswise as in the new Massachusetts avenue cars and twenty-six passengers can be seated. The platform in front is elongated and is of sufficient dimensions to furnish a box for the driver and allow of entrance from either side—the end of the car having two doors—with the money box between them. Each passenger must pass the driver and money box upon entering or leaving the car, and there is no place where a deadbeat or a small boy may "catch on." The company will experiment with this car and if it proves popular a number like it will be built.

Express Consolidation.

Officials of the American Express company, have just received official notice that the express business over the Northwestern Ohio railroad, from Toledo to Mansfield, the Xenia & Richmond, the C. C. & I. C. (from Richmond to Chicago, and from Columbus to Indianapolis), the J. M. & I. and its branches will be operated by the Adams Express company, but will be equally owned by the American and Adams. Agencies will be consolidated at points now vacated by both, and the agency given to the company doing the larger business. The order will take effect November 1.

CAUSE OF IMMIGRATION.

Many people wonder at the immense immigration to the United States from all parts of the world, and I am happy to give the reason to a dead (or live) certainty. It is, that foreigners can learn the United States language so readily. The whole language, or enough to use, can be nastered in a day or two, as all they have to learn is: "What are you giving me?" "She's a daisy, she is;" "You are giving me taffy on a straw;" "Dees he twig to the racket?" "How deep is the water in your pa's cellar?" "Now cheese it;" "Smack him on the snoot;" "Rock and rye;" "Wipe off your vest;" "You bought of J. A. McKenzie, the clothier;" "Full down your chin;" "Come down with the dust;" "How sleek you look;" "Shake, old pard;" "Put it there;" "Has he got the sand?" "He's just too lovely to live;" "Tra-la-la, George;" "Ta-ta." If you don't want to make a foreigner of yourself, avoid all but J. A. McKenzie, the clothier, and with one of his suits you will look and feel like a scholar, and can use a whole dictionary—if you can find one.
